Founders Bank names Tinsley to advisory board

SUGAR LAND (July 6, 2010) – Founders Bank has named Reed Tinsley to its advisory board.

Tinsley, a certified public accountant and certified healthcare business consultant, is a nationally known business advisor to physicians and medical practices. He has written six books on medical practice management and has been published in dozens of major industry periodicals. He is also in high demand as a speaker to healthcare groups and medical associations across the country.

“With his expertise and market knowledge, Reed will be an invaluable resource to our healthcare banking group,” said Jim Sturgeon, Founders Bank CEO. “Through his counsel and hands-on assistance, Reed has helped hundreds of physicians and medical practices across the country improve their operational and financial management, strategic planning and growth strategies. We are thrilled to have him join our advisory board and look forward to his support of our efforts to serve the medical community.”

Tinsley is a member of a number of prominent industry groups, including the American Institute of CPAs, the American Health Lawyers Association, the Medical Group Management Association National and the Association of Certified Valuation Analysts. He currently serves on the board of directors of the National Society of Certified Healthcare Business Consultants and as treasurer of the American Organ Transplant Association.

About Founders Bank

Founders Bank is Fort Bend’s only locally owned and managed bank, with the goal of being “the best bank ever.” The bank takes its name from a “founders group” of Fort Bend business people and community leaders who served as the driving force behind the institution’s organization.
